Re: Junior Software Developer

Dear Hiring Manager,

Please welcome my attached resume as an application for the position of Junior Software Developer. With over one year experience as a Web Developer, I believe I am an excellent candidate for the role and would love to bring my enthusiasm and expertise to your growing team.

As a student of Computer Programming and Analysis at George Brown College, I have successfully developed creative web applications, utilizing programming languages including JavaScript, and Python, while also building web applications with JS frameworks, such as React.js. Throughout my academic career, I have collaborated with cross-functional teams to enhance Version Control collaboration, using Git flow and GitHub flow. I have developed strong collaborative and interpersonal skills that can successfully help your team by elevating your current strategies. With a passion for solving challenging problems, I follow SCRUM methodologies to enhance workflow.

As a team-centric developer, I employ critical-thinking skills, and I am comfortable taking charge in fast-paced, collaborative environments. Your organization is of particular interest to me, as I admire your innovative, non-hierarchical approach, which fosters employee autonomy and an ambitious, collaborative work culture. As a recipient of the Dean's List, I have demonstrated a strong work ethic, and I have often exceeded project requirements because of my passion to explore real industry scenarios. I am confident that my ability to maximize project performance, while managing multiple tasks under strict timelines, makes me an ideal candidate for the Junior Software position.

I would love to have a more in-depth conversation about how my skill set can bring value to your organization. I thank you for your time and consideration in my application.

Sincerely,

Marco Stevanella
